WESTERNER'S VIEW OF FINANCIAL PANIC

President Forgan of National City Bank of Chicago Talks to New Yorkers.

COUNTRY NEEDS LESS EXPANSION OF CREDIT

Bryan's Plan of Government Guarantee of Deposits Is Strongly Opposed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.-Speaking of the financial bills offered as a panacea for present financial troubles, David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank of Chicago, in a toast last night on the question, "Chicago View," at the annual banquet of the bankers of the city of New York, com-prising a group of eight of the New York State Bankers' association, at the Waldorf, declared that in his judg-ment the country needs less, not more, expansion of credit. Mr. Forgan op-posed strongly Mr. Bryan's proposition of "government guarantee of all de-posits of the national banks."

Among those at the guests' table were J. P. Morgan and Comptroller of the Currency Ridgely. Mr. Forgan's speech occasioned much applause. He said:

Coming from the second city of the country to the first, and appreciating the financial problems and burdens which fall upon the centers. I feel that my first word must be one of sincere congratulations. I congratulate you that the "stingency" is over, and that you are again in a position to order a good dinner. I rejoice with you that the good ship "Finance" had righted herself and is now in fairly smooth water, and that the other great vessels. "Commerce" and "Industry," are following closely in her wake. If you will allow me, I should also like to commend the able seamanship displayed by you of New York during the late stress of weather. We in Chicage are rather proud of the way we weathered the storm. I think we came through it before than most cities. But for courage to face the situation, grit to stand punishment, and unwillingness to strain yourselves in order to help others, I take my hat off to the bankers of this city—Western newspaper comparisons to the contrary notwithstanding.

Storms both teach and test seamanship. For that reason American financiers ought to be the best in the world. A banker may pass a lifetime in almost any other civilized country without learning more than mere money-loaning. But in this country his experience soon develops him into a full-fledged financier.

There must be something wrong with him if, after a single decade, he has not tome to fully understand the nature of centralized or scattered reserves, of temporary or protracted liquidation, of expanded or contracted credit, of clearing-house certificates, of payroll checks, of rigid or elastic currency. Moreover, he is quite likely to invent an original and infallible plan designed to cure all our financial liss—and that is one of the greatest obstacles in the way of reform, because legislators become mystified by the wrangling among the bankers.

Loss of Confidence the Cause.

The late unpleasantness was so short Address of Mr. Forgan. Coming from the second city of the puntry to the first, and appreciating the Clearing-House Certificates.

That is what happened lately. It has hespened before, and New York has several times been driven to clearing-house certificates as the only means of salvation. Chicago never issued them before. In 1893 we had the World's fair, which brought a great deal of currency to the city, and bosides the bank deposits of Chicago in 1893 were only $179,000,000, whereas now they are $700,000,000. This time we were driven to the same refuge, and after our first experience we are inclined to think clearing-house certificates a good thing if they did not scare the people so.

and after our first experience we are inclined to think clearing-house certificates a gdod thing if they did not scare the people so.

The way the law regarding reserves works is best understood by an illustration: The law requires a National bank in Troy, N. Y. to carry 15 per cent reserve. Only 6 per cent, however, need be in its own vault. The other 9 per cent may be with its reserve agent in New York City. If the deposits of the Troy bank are $1,000,000 it keeps $50,000 at home and $90,000 in New York. The $29,000 in New York, however, is not moriey. It is merely a credit on the banks of the New York bank against which a reserve (allowing for legal deductions) of not more than $20,000 is kent by the New York bank. When the Troy bank, becoming alarmed, deems it prudent to have a larger proportion of its reserve at home it telegraphs the New York correspondent to send it, say $20,000. That does not seem an unreasonable request to the Troy banker. Only $20,000 out of $90,000. But when the Troy bank withdraws $20,000 it withdraws all the reserve here is in the world against its deposits except what is in its own safe, and the New York bank is left with a credit on its books of $70,000, against which no reserve now wists. When that transaction is multiplied by thousands and becomes general, it is simply an impossibility for the New York bank to stand it, so it restricts specie payments for a while. For this reason I fever that part of Senator Aldrich's bill which increased the proportion of reserves to be retained at home by the country bank from 8 to 10 per cent. But that is the only provision of his bill which I favor, If any of his so-called emergency currency were ever issued bearing a 6 per cent tax it would be the signal for the country banks to begin withdrawing their balances, and instead of averting a panic, it would make a panic certain.

How to Avoid Danger.

cent tax it would be the signal for the country banks to begin withdrawing their balances, and instead of averting a panic, it would make a panic certain.

How to Avoid Danger.

If our currency could be made more responsive to the needs of commerce in various sections, and at various seasons, we would be in less danger of panic. This, in my apinion, can be accomplished only by injecting more of the element of bank credit into our bank note currency Elasticity means contraction after expansion so that it may expand again. This can oply be obtained by making the currency fairly profitable to the issuing banks so that there will be competition airong them to keep their own notes out and to push their competitors' in for redeemption. Ample redemption facilities must be provided for that purpose. In that way only will there never be more nor less currefrey in the channels of commerce than is required. I have always been doubtful whether proper redemption facilities can be provided for our national banking system, containing over 6000 individual banks, and my doubts have not been lessened by reading Congressman. Fowler's latest bill.

The proposals of the commission appointed by the American Bankers' association come nearer a solution of the problem than any other, and ought to be tried.

Ridicules Bryan's Plan.

Ridicules Bryan's Plan.

Another financial panacea has been proposed by Mr. Bryan, and like his "free silver" proposition, it bids fair to deceive many even of the elect, namely, "Government guarantee of all deposits of the national isanks." This folly can be presented in fully as attractive colors as any of the old financial fallacles, and I am somewhat alarmed by it. Bankers will, I suppose, be charged with self-interest in opposing it I am utterly amazed to find Mr. Powler supporting it. I have seen many bank fallures in the past thirty years, but all that I have ever known have bad one and the same cause, namely, the management making loans thirty years, but all that I have ever known have had one and the same cause, namely, the management making loans directly or indirectly to Itself. I have known incompetent bankers make heavy losses by bad loans and lose their posttions on that account, but I have never known a bank to fail or get into a failing condition where the officers had no personal interest in the loans. The fiduciary nature of the banker's calling, collecting as he does, the money of the poor and loaning it to the rich, is its highest claim on his integrity and conscience. But if all deposits are to be guaranteed, why not risk them in trying to make himself rich seeing no one in particular will be the loser? Deposits are not money. They are largely created by expansion of credit. In my judgment, we want less expansion of credit in this country, not more, and it seems to me that if there is one thing that would make loose banking more common, infinite both loans and deposits to a degree never before witnessed, and ultimately produce a crash worse than any we have seen had, that thing is Government guarantee of deposits.

Hundred Remedies.

There are nearly one hundred financial bills. I am told, clamoring for attention at Washington. I hope either the one proposed by the bankers' commission will pass, or that none will pass until another commission composed of bankers and leading business men has been appointed by the Government, has studied the problem thoroughly and has reported a bill.

a bill in closing, let me say that the prevailing note in the West is optimistic. This being election year, there will, of course, be some hesitation until we ascertain just what particular brand of reformer we are to have in the White House. For that reason, we do not expect general business in 1908 will equal that of 1907 and perjums it is just as well to resemb and perhaps it is just as well to go some-what slower for a while. But, gentlepanles concerned.

A statement issued by Mr. Frost tonight says:

"The direct cause of the receivership is the fact that the credit of the company and the market for its securities were injured by the receivership inetituted on New Year's eve, and as a result it became impossible to consummate the sale of bonds which had been substantially completed. After conferences between the principal holders of the company's obligations it was decided that a receivership would be the best means of conserving the property and the interests of the bondholders, creditors and stockholders."

The receivership for A. C. Frost & Company is explained as follows:

"It was deemed advisable, for the purpose of protecting large collateral loans which had been placed by A. C. Frost & Company, that a receiver be appointed for that firm to prevent them from being sacrificed."

The road runs north from Evanston. III., to Racine, Wis., and an extension toward Milwaukee has been completed to within five miles of that city. A branch is also operated between Lake Bluff and Rockefeller, III., small towns north of Chicago. Its was stated by representatives of Mr. Frost tonight that only about eight miles of road are lacking to make the system complete and that the cost of completing this will not exceed $250,000. The first receivership was dismissed January 3. The effect of the receivership proceedings upon the credit of the company was far reaching, however, and inability to overcome the handicap impused by them led the interests in control to take today's action.
